Arab Victims of Recent Israeli Raids

[EDITOR'S NOTE: The Camp David formula for Middle East peace that began with Egyptian President Sadat's trip to Israel in late 1977 did not bring an end to bloodshed in the Middle East, but rather intensified it. US Congressman Paul Findley (Republican, Illinois), who has made numerous trips to the Middle East and has worked for the establishment of direct talks between the US government and the PLO,¹ spoke to the US House of Representatives on the human dimension of Middle East violence since Sadat's peace initiative. His speech, and the list he provided of Arab men, women and children killed by Israeli raids, bombing or shelling, have been taken from the Congressional Record, February 13, 1980.]

SPEECH BY PAUL FINDLEY OF ILLINOIS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1980.

Mr. Speaker, on November 19, 1977, Egypt's President Anwar Sadat made his historic trip to Jerusalem to meet with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin and address the Knesset. That was the beginning of an ever broadening peace initiative between Egypt and Israel, one which has resulted in the signing of a long-term peace treaty renouncing force and establishing formal diplomatic relations between these two countries for the first time in their history. In addition, Israel has now returned to Egypt much of the territory captured in the 1967 war, including the religious shrine on Mount Sinai, where Moses received the Ten Commandments. Also, important oil fields have been relinquished, and well over half of the Sinai peninsula is once again under the Egyptian flag.

Relations between Egypt and Israel are at a historic high point, and still rising, to the deep chagrin of most other Arab states in the Middle East.

Yet elsewhere in the Middle East, the situation remains grim. Far from stopping the bloodshed and hatred between Arabs and Israelis, the peace initiative on Israel's southern border was followed by intensified violence on its other borders.

While no Egyptian blood has been spilled in Sinai since Sadat's trip to Jerusalem, the fighting in Lebanon has erupted sporadically with an intensity that threatens to destroy the Camp David formula. In 1978, Palestinians shelled Israeli positions and carried out attacks which left many innocent civilians maimed and dead. For their part, Israeli pilots flying sophisticated aircraft supplied by the United States carried out devastating bombing raids on Lebanese towns, villages, and Palestinian refugee camps, also leaving innocent civilians maimed and dead. Now, after a period of restraint on all sides, fighting has again resumed in Lebanon — this time between Palestinians and Christian Lebanese forces that have appealed to Israel for military support. Whether Israel will intervene, whether the fighting will spread, how many additional lives will be lost — and how many times this endless repetition of death and destruction will be played over and over — only time will tell. One thing is certain, since Sadat's peace initiative to Israel, the loss of life on both sides — Arab and Israeli — has been extensive.

And amid the charges and counter-charges that emanate from both sides, too many people tend to forget the human tragedy that each death brings.

To the grieving mother or father, husband, wife or child, it matters less that the attack that takes the life of a loved one was designed to prevent others from launching a commando raid or in reprisal for some heinous act of violence. Whether Israeli, Palestinian or Lebanese, the anguish of that moment will last a lifetime, ever deepening in bitterness and instilling hatred that will be passed on from generation to generation.

Today I want to explore the human dimension of the ongoing tragedy and war in the Middle East. And I can think of no better — certainly no more graphic — way to show the dimension of that tragedy than to list in the Congressional Record the names of those who have been killed in hostile action since the peace initiative got under way. The list I am placing in the Record today gives the name, nationality, and place of death of each of the 344 Arabs who have died. Included are 40 children and 26 women. Of the total, less than half — 157 — are Palestinians. The list shows clearly that the war of attrition does not affect only Palestinian guerrillas. Most of those who died are not guerrillas, but instead are Lebanese civilians, including women and children.

I had intended to place in today's Record a list of the approximately 100 Israelis who have died during the same period as a result of commando attacks and combat with Palestinians. Several months ago I met with the Israeli Ambassador in my office and at that time he agreed to provide me with such a list. Subsequently, I learned from a member of the Embassy staff that the list of names had been received, that it totalled about 100 names, and I was told that as soon as it was translated and typed up it would be sent to me. Since then, I have repeatedly called the Israeli Embassy to see when the list might be ready, but to my deep regret I have now been told that it is very doubtful that it will be furnished to me. The reason now given for declining to provide the names is that the lists of Arabs and Israelis might in some way be asymmetrical.

The Israelis object to the fact that the Arab list does not have identification numbers or other information which proves the authenticity of the deaths. Because of this, the Israelis say that there is no way to be certain that the listed person has actually died, and if so, that the person was killed as a result of Israeli military action. Finally, I am told that the Israeli Embassy fears that listing the names in the Congressional Record might somehow backfire and cause domestic political repercussions in Israel. I recount these reasons as precisely as I can because I want everyone to understand that I have tried very hard and on several occasions to persuade the Israeli Embassy to allow me to publish the names of the Israelis who died and in that way recognize them for their great sacrifice.

I regret the Israeli decision very much, and I hope that it will yet be possible for some Member of Congress to suitably memorialize Israeli war dead by listing them in the Congressional Record. Their loss is no less than that of the Palestinians and the Lebanese and an important part of the seemingly endless tragedy in the Middle East.

May all parties see the human dimension of violence and bring peace and justice to this unhappy land.
